Message from the Issue Editor

Dear Students,

Welcome to ICFAI University. It is time we had vibrant students like you brightening our campus. ICFAI University, as you all know is in its 7th year of inception starting with Management and IT programs and later on introducing Humanities and Social Science Programs from 2013.

All of you have come from different places and institutions with varied experiences and backgrounds yet, again to pursue studies with a career in mind. Whatever be the case, I take this opportunity to share a few words of study advice with the belief that they will be of help to you.

- Try to buy your textbooks as soon as the semester begins for a glimpse of your classes.
- Review the lesson plan prior the class.
- Take notes in class when the faculty explains.
- If you read the topic before the class you can concentrate and understand the explanations better.
- Don’t waste your time and attention in the class by making notes of what is already there in the book.
- Don’t let social activities take priority over your studies.
- Studying in groups while on campus during break time will help clarify doubts and problems and is a great way to have a social life and learn at the same time.
- Always give importance to bold vocabulary in the text book.
- Remember that the grades you obtain during your program is going to be a ‘make it or break it’ for your job in the future.

Last but not the least, “Be the master of your time, not time your master.”

Mr. Santosh Kumar
Asst. Professor, Dept. of Acc. & Fin.,
ICFAI University Nagaland
Great people think great
Small people sleep great;
To live is to enjoy: gracefully!
To die is no one’s joy: seriously!

Make me smile now,
For tomorrow you may not see.
Or live long to know,
How beautiful I am to thee...

Creation indeed is slow
But let yourself flow:
For in time you will: realise!

My genuine friendship so pure: no lies!
TEACHER
Mr. Akshay Rai, BCA 5\textsuperscript{th} Semester

Who can but to care be so sound,
When returns may never be found.
You have worked and struggled, my teacher,
With deeds not of an empty preacher,
But of life lessons in motion
Constantly firm through life's commotion.

May I be worthy
To answer through me
About you to the world ever,
If I hold fast and never waver.
Would that be my tribute
Ultimate, if I contribute
To what you have given
For my life to be driven?

When I was infant
And couldn’t talk
She taught me it
And then to walk.

As I walked
I fell and cried
To cure my pain
She came and tried.
When I was a child
I feared the night
And she brought me light
And made it bright.

As I told her
About my fear
She held me tight
And washed my tears.

When I was a girl
My demands grew
But to provide them
All pains she bore.
As I thanked her
With all my love
She said to me
“Thank the God above.”

Now I’ve grown big
Strong and tall
But still she pains
When my tears do fall.

So I assure her
As sure as can be
That the God above
Is like my dear mom.

Teachers
Ms. Maya Gurung, B.Com 3rd Semester

You are the light
That guides us
And leads us
To our goals

You are the inspiration
That inspires us
As a role model
To dream and to work hard

You are the strength
That helps us
To fulfil our potential
To reach our goals
You are the bestest.

Self-realisation

Mr. Subijoy Acharya, BCA 1st Semester

They say I am sunk in myself,
An absentee from mind for instant.
They call me slow, a sloppy nub,
A fool amidst a clever hub.
A moron in studies, everyone’s liability,
But deep I know, I have creative ability.

I scribble, I write, I am a literature boy.
It brings me delight and a charming joy.
I struggle and I stumble, I am not the best,
But I learn and I know, I am different from the rest.

My mind is ambiguous but heart is ambitious.
My future is mysterious but present is glorious.
Whatever I have, I have the best.
Like a small bird in a nest.

So from now, this is my promise
Creativity will now be my bliss.
Tomorrow will be tough, I am guessing.
So give me your love, your blessing.
